Will growth plan wipe out '72 pact?

PLEASANTON — The city's controversial growth management plan could throw future development back into the courts.

Developer George Oakes, one of a half dozen opponents of the plan to speak at last night's planning commission meeting, said, "There is no question I would open the law suit."

Oakes opened the public proceedings by citing the multi-million 1972 sewage suit and claiming the growth management plan would wipe clean the slate and start from scratch.

Calling for cooperation and comradeship, he introduced his attorney,

Peter Davis, who said, "The city's proposed plan is not analogous to those in Petaluma and Davis."

Oakes called the Petaluma and Davis plans, "foreign and strange," adding "and I use 'foreign' in its worst sense."

"In all honesty," Oakes continued, "You have had the finest collection of developers of any city in California, of any city in this country."

"(The plan) throws aside all the settled lawsuits for a numbers game put together by a bunch of bureaucrats."

The plan, in its first public hearing, as it pushes its way toward city council for a final decision, also drew the wrath of local resident Dagmar Fulton.

"I think they're silly, frankly," she said of growth management plans. "It's an attitude of social concerns I call plain nonsense."

"Planners have a way of doing things with pencils rather than with people," she concluded.

All the speakers said they would be back later.

The plan, which would map out development for the next 20 years by a system of mandatory requirements and incentive points issued developers, drew an ambivalent reaction from former city councilman Chris Beratlis, a developer.

"I'm not totally opposed to the growth management plan per se. There's parts I like and parts I don't like," Beratlis said.

The incentive points issued for meeting energy and conservation criteria met with his approval, but it is the "payola" where developers "earn points by giving up to $1,000 (per house) to different funds that can short - change the customer," Beratlis charged.

Under the proposed plan, developers could earn up to 15 incentive points for contributing between $100 and 1,050 per house to the city's capital improvements fund and up to 10 points for contributions of $130 to $400 per house to the city's housing fund.

Architect Jack Bras said he is "pretty much in the same position as Mr. Oakes, but on a much smaller scale. We've played the ball game by the rules and now find ourselves facing something called the growth management plan."

"I hope the planning commission takes a good, long look at this," said Bras.

Remains of the craft that crashed in San Ramon Sunday, killing two.

What caused plane disasters

SAN RAMON — Pilot errors and crowding skies over San Ramon Valley have resulted in three fatal crashes in the past three years; the latest occurring Sunday.

Dean Orville Reiersgaard, 25, of Hayward took off from Hayward Airport with a passenger in a single engine Cessna 120, N2346N, at 2:08 p.m. He crashed at 2:35 p.m., according to Willard H. Hart, Air Safety Investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB). The passenger has not been identified.

A witness, Robert Nielsen, Jr., 20, of San Ramon said he saw the plane partially recover from a vertical dive before hitting the ground and bursting into flames. The plane was in a stunt maneuver, Nielsen reported. The crash occurred a mile north of Old Ranch Road and a mile east of Dougherty Road in San Ramon.

Officials from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), NTSB and surrounding airports said San Ramon Valley airspace attracts pilots since it is one of the few relatively isolated areas left in which to practice flying techniques. They indicated no other factors such as unusual air currents had contributed to the three crashes involving fatalities.

Two planes collided Jan. 17, 1974 over San Ramon. NTSB reported a commercial pilot was learning to fly on instruments — without visual reference to the ground — when two planes

Courthouse should be at Santa Rita

OAKLAND — The Valley's new courthouse should be located at Santa Rita and perhaps in five years or more an administrative building ought to follow there.

That's the recommendation of Alameda County Administrator Loren Enoch to the board of supervisors today.

The courts currently are located in the Livermore Municipal Building, 39 S. Livermore Ave. They are not overcrowded now, but a third judge appears needed for the Valley and that would put that location over its maximum use.

The administrative building discussed by Enoch would house branch offices of the welfare and health departments, farm adviser and other administrative functions. The "East County Government Center" would not be built for at least five years and perhaps longer, according to Enoch's recommendation.

Other sites studied by Enoch for the possible court locations were a 20 acre Sunol Boulevard parcel in Pleasanton, another site on Hopyard Road, the Staples Ranch on the south side of I-580 across from Santa Rita, a 20 acre parcel on Stanley Boulevard between Livermore and Pleasanton, and a 20 acre site on the west side of the county fairgrounds.

Livermore Municipal Court Judge Mark Eaton said yesterday he likes Enoch's recommendation. Santa Rita is the geographical and demographic center of the Valley and the land already is owned by the county, so there will be a big savings, said Eaton.

The only disadvantages are its lack of public transportation, which can be remedied with installation of a bus stop, and no restaurants nearby.

The problem of getting to a restaurant at noon, though, can be solved by extending the frontage road a short distance to connect to Hopyard Road, said Eaton.

The importance of installing a bus stop should not be underestimated, said Eaton. He has seen as many as half a dozen defendants at the noon break waiting for a bus near the courtroom.

"It's higher than you might expect," he said. "A lot of our defendants are indigent and they rely on public transit."

City saves merchants' parking lot

LIVERMORE — A move to permanently secure the merchants' parking lot, located behind the courthouse, was launched by the city council last night.

With Mayor Helen Tirsell and Councilman Glenn Dahlbacka absent, the three-member council directed City Manager Bill Parness to negotiate a lease for the property.

After the lease was successfully negotiated, according to the John Staley motion, the council would attempt to find a financing method to buy the land.

If negotiations fail, the lot could still be used for parking unless either the owner or council instituted the 90 day termination option.

Merchants support the lot through a monthly surcharge. The owner wants to boost the monthly lease price from $616 currently to $820.

Councilman Dale Turner said the move was contrary to previous council policy. The "hard line" taken by council members before was "take it or leave it," he said, with no room for compromise.

The current lease will expire Sept. 30. A 90 day termination option would guarantee the lot's use through year's end.

Council members said they did intend to eventually purchase the land.

SR protest

Lining up against wild drivers

SAN RAMON — Reckless driving along Broadmoor Drive is causing San Ramon residents to get their dander up enough to organize before seeking official help.

Following advice from the San Ramon Homeowners Association (SRHA), people living along Broadmoor Drive are starting to sign petitions and organize meetings protesting the hazardous traffic.

Broadmoor Drive runs between Montevideo Drive and Alcosta Boulevard. There are only two stop signs. One is at Pine Valley Road; the other at Alcosta Boulevard.

For years, complaints have trickled in from small groups and individuals about teenagers and adults speeding on Broadmoor Drive. Some reports mentioned cars being driven over sidewalks and through yards.

This Thursday evening a group of residents living along Broadmoor Drive will meet to discuss their strategy.

"And we are trying to get at least one neighborhood representative from every side street along Broadmoor to attend," a spokesperson said.

She said children living in those side street homes had to walk down Broadmoor Drive to school, in some cases.

After petitions are signed, protest group representatives will approach the SRHA again and seek their support, the spokesperson said.

"That's our starting point," she added.

After that, they will tackle law enforcement agencies and seek their advice and help, the spokesperson said.

Transit

City plans for special needs

Handicapped and elderly Livermore residents have been a major factor in the city's rapid transit planning according to assistant city manager Ed Schilling.

Though studies have disagreed on how to best serve handicapped riders, Schilling said the Livermore city staff was preparing a federal grant request for transit equipment that would include features necessary for handicapped patrons.

He said AC Transit, which would be contracted to provide to provide bus service in Livermore and feeder lines to BART, had recently begun special service in Concord with a lift-equipped bus to assist handicapped riders.

Concord program is experimental he said and added, "AC Transit is in the middle of the controversy over whether to create special service for the handicapped or to equip all busses with special lifts, and whether this would be consistent with the operation of a regular transit system because of the demands on the drivers."

Though the question is a recurring one, Schilling said he expected modifications for the handicapped would be included on buses the city was preparing to order. However Schilling pointed out even after submitting the grant request this fall or early winter the vehicles would not arrive until late 1978.

Concord's service for handicapped and elderly riders operates on a modified dial-a-ride basis with the costs covered by the State sales taxes available to the city. The equipment was provided by Environmental Equipment Corp. of San Leandro which gave the lift to AC Transit to test its new design.

Dublin man killed

Oakland police continued yesterday to investigate Sunday's shooting death of a 40-year-old Dublin teamster, Willie Moore.

Moore, of 7976 Caroline Court, was reportedly shot once in the stomach during an argument in the parking lot of an East Oakland market, Super M Market, 9422 Edes Ave.

He collapsed in the market and was taken to the emergency room of Vesper Memorial Hospital where he died at 4:25 p.m.

Police said they were questioning several witnesses to the shooting and were reported seeking a man in his 60's known as "Sarge."

Fair board meets

The Alameda County Fair Association Board of Directors will review a concessions committee report, which includes contract negotiations with Foley and Burk Shows, as part of tonight's regular meeting.

Directors convene at 8 o'clock in the administration offices at the Fairgrounds.

UC nuclear talks

The public is invited to express its views tonight when a University of California committee begins reviewing the relationship of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory to the UC system.

Tonight's public meeting, to be held from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of Almond Avenue School at 1401 Almond Avenue in Livermore, will be the first of two held locally. Public comments will not be accepted at Wednesday's assemblage.

The report, to review the lab's relationship to the university from UC's perspective, is scheduled for completion before year's end.

An answer to big, central plants?

HAYWARD — "Small is beautiful" may be the current vogue in the state, but Alameda County Planning Commissioners want a little more time to examine the motto before they try it out on sewage treatment plants.

They got their first glimpse of a staff study of "package plants" and septic tank systems yesterday, but referred it to a work session and public hearing.

Commissioners will meet with county technocrats at 7 p.m. tomorrow, and open the doors to the public Aug. 29. The meetings will be held in the Public Works Building, 399 Elmhurst St., Hayward.

The report, sparked by Carl Nipper's plans to develop 95 deluxe homes on the Pleasanton Ridge overlooking Sunol, brings together health, planning and public works officials, water quality control supervisors and state representatives.

No "summary and conclusions" are offered until planning commissioners examine it and take public input.

The emphasis on "conventional" systems — large, municipal sewer systems — "is derived in part from the economic and political benefits assumed to accompany orderly growth, and in part from a conviction that residential development with septic tanks or package plants eventually leads to environmental, financial and political problems," according to the tome.

But manufacturers of small treatment plants "argue that the advances in system design together with proper institutional arrangements for management make the small systems as acceptable as the conventional, and that in some respects, such as substantial elimination of the collection system and dispersal of effluent discharges, they are superior," according to the report.

Neighboring San Joaquin County worked on a similar study, and Sonoma County currently is developing one.

A proliferation of package plants in San Joaquin

County led to a host of problems, the report says, especially when private management groups oversaw the operation.

"Homeowners associations or other non-public management arrangements can be very tenuous and temporary when more than minor problems arise." The government of general jurisdiction becomes the "agency of last resort" when larger problems surface.

The state's Regional Water Quality Control Board requires that all small treatment plants be operated and maintained by a public jurisdiction.

Pleasanton has asked the county to squash Nipper's "Rancho Sunol Estates" because the city does not want to be the "government of general jurisdiction" should the going get tough.

Assuming Alameda County's general plan continues to limit development, staff suggests:

- Limiting small treatment systems in existing developments to correct a water pollution problem

"where connection to an existing conventional system is not as cost effective a solution."

- Broad use of "package plants" for both existing and new developments provided they are outside the "spheres of influence" of jurisdictions already providing conventional service. The systems would also have to be compatible with neighboring systems "and the area as a whole."

But staff also suggests any new system be the most cost effective, "based on a study of alternatives including connection to an existing system."

Nipper's proposed use of an Aqueonics Inc. system has come under fire as unnecessarily expensive when compared to conventional systems.

But Aqueonics Inc. President Niel E. Nielson claims the self-contained system would be far cheaper than the proposed "super sewer" pipeline through the Dublin Canyon, or a series of long "trunk lines" currently used to feed a centralized sewage treatment plant.

sistant superintendent of the K-8 Whisman School District in Mountain View, she was the unanimous selection of the Murray board from an original application outpouring of 100. Dr. Kobayashi and her husband, an engineer with ITEK, are residents of San Carlos. (Times photo)

Student 'shadow board' ok for SR schools

DANVILLE — The San Ramon Valley Unified School District board has formally endorsed a "shadow."

Not the elusive crime fighter or a watchdog group, but a panel of high school students who will serve as the district's Student Board of Trustees.

While the student panel will not play the role of shadow in the figurative sense, their duties will roughly parallel those of the governing board for the K-12 district.

Approval of policy establishing the board was granted earlier this month.

Members of the district student board will be students enrolled at California High, San Ramon High, and Monte Vista High.

According to the formal policy acted upon by the governing board, the district student board "shall provide opportunities for challenge and engagement in the real tasks of education by offering students an opportunity to bring to the attention of the Board of Education matters of concern and interest to students in the district."

Student trustees shall, through Superintendent Alan Petersdorf, have the responsibility of making recommendations to the senior board and of working with administrators for the improvement of educational opportunities for students in the secondary schools. Two student trustees will sit with the Board of Education at each regular meeting in a non-voting, advisory capacity.

The students will also establish bylaws in accordance with the policy setting up the board. They will have at least one annual joint meeting with the senior board.

Student trustees will be eligible to receive academic credits as student board members.

The student board would be formed and seated after school commences in September.

Final days

Barbara Burton appears to be a bit pensive about the fact she is moving out of the area and away from her secretarial position with the Valley Community Services District Recreation Department. She has held this position for eight-and-one-half years. A farewell party was held Sunday for Barbara at VCSD's Shannon Community Center in Dublin. Barbara said she would miss everybody.

Crackdown on hangar use at Livermore field

LIVERMORE — Airport operators are cracking down on pilots leasing hangars who later sublease the units without city permission or work on their craft in the metal structure.

At a meeting yesterday of the Livermore Airport Advisory Committee, directors reported that four persons leasing hangars had sub-leased them without prior approval in apparent violation of the contract.

Regulations prevent subleasing so persons awaiting an empty hangar will not be frustrated when a lessee sells his plane and includes the hangar as part of the deal.

Two of the disputed hangars will be returned to the city. One lessee will have three months to resolve his contract, and the fourth will be given time to prove he still has a one-third interest in the stored aircraft in his hangar.

Pilots who sell their planes would be given three months to purchase another before their lease would be cancelled.

People are waiting in line for one of the 54 hangars which rent for $70 per month at the airport. Nine shelters are also available at $40 per month.

Committee members said one lessee is apparently allowing his hangar to be used to repair other aircraft apparently in violation of the city contract.

Public Workers Director Dan Lee said minor maintenance would be allowed, but periodic inspections would uncover any commercial repair operations or other violations in existence.

The city has previously cancelled hangar lease agreements due to improper activities.

Airport operators hope to construct additional hangar facilities on the south side of the airport in the future. Directors would know by fall whether the Federal Aviation Administration will approve grants to help fund the proposed construction.

Chairman John Kerekes repeated his plea for planting bushes on the west and south sides to keep dust and debris from blowing into open hangars. This followed an incident last week when a crop-duster spilled some of his cargo while loading and the powdery substance lined hangar walls and covered some planes.

A suggestion was made to put a series of "portahangers" on city land near the south side for a 10-year period and rent them for $25-35 per month. The hangars, which cost $5,000 each, would relieve some of the crowding. They will be considered at a later meeting.

Urban plan gets close review

HAYWARD — The state's proposed "urban development strategy," a nuts and bolts approach to reversing California's reputation for "urban sprawl" and heading off the blight that infests the east and midwest, has a long way to go before it sees the light at the end of Alameda County's tunnel.

County planning commissioners wrestled with it yesterday in their second session with the weighty tome. And like their initial examination, it proved frustrating and confusing.

"The more you go through it, the more you read between the lines," said commissioner George Spiliotopoulos of Pleasanton. "I think it's going to be the biggest mess the state's ever gotten into."

In their first match with the proposed plan, commissioners clawed their way through only the first two policies and felt "confused and disappointed," said Spiliotopoulos.

hit. Two persons in one plane were killed. The other craft was landed without serious injuries to passengers.

On June 2, 1977, two light planes collided over San Ramon during training flights involving instructors and students. Three persons died in this crash. NTSB reported the pilots did not see each other.

An FAA spokesman said there were no official practice areas.

"But the area near San Ramon is a natural one since it is not as congested and is near several airports," he added.

He explained a pilot is not under airport control after getting five miles away.

"Then a pilot is supposed to abide by FAA rules and regulations that promote his safety and those around him."

Hart said it would take approximately two weeks to complete the Reiersgaard investigation. An FAA inspector will be assisting Hart in the investigation.

NTSB is charged by Congress to investigate all aircraft accidents, according to Hart.

"We are to determine the cause and make recommendations that will help prevent the same thing happening again," Hart explained.

The FAA participates in investigations to cut red tape and also make preventative recommendations, the FAA spokesman said.

SOME IMPORTANT FACTS CONCERNING ASTHMA

The average person believes that asthma is based on an allergy to dust, fur, scents, etc. There is a constant search for the substance "causing" the asthmatic attacks.

Actually, asthma is NOT caused by something outside of the body. The cause of asthma is within the body itself. The immediate reason for an asthmatic condition is a hypersensitivity of the membranes of the bronchial tubes. In the presence of the particular pollen, dust, etc., this hypersensitivity can result in an inflammation and spasm of the tubes, with considerable secretion of phlegm.

When the bronchial tubes are affected in this way, breathing in causes the patient little difficulty, but breathing out creates trouble, as the air has to be forced through passages which have become narrow and inflamed.

In dealing with asthma, the problem is not really to find things in the environment which affect the body tissue. The common sense approach is to find what is wrong with the body which makes it hypersensitive to substances in the environment.

That is the approach of chiropractic. In other words, it isn't the pollen that attacks the body. It is something in the body which makes it react in a certain way to the pollen.

The chiropractor has long known that a disturbance in the functioning of the sympathetic nervous system is the forerunner of the bronchial inflammation that brings on asthmatic attacks. Without this disturbance or dysfunction of the nervous system, patients would not be susceptible to asthmatic attacks.

Recently in an article in Clinical Medicine, Dr. William Grant Lewi pointed out that allergies are only the secondary causes of asthma, hay fever, and other ailments, and that the primary cause is a dysfunction of the sympathetic nervous system. Chiropractic research and practice has long since established this point and every chiropractor's case records will reveal where adjustments have restored the patient's nervous system to normal functioning, after which asthmatic attacks diminished or disappeared entirely.

For more information on ASTHMA call Dr. R. J. Serafin DC at 846-4732 or write 60 Mission Dr., Pleasanton.

WASTING AWAY TO A MERE NOTHING

If you wish to lose weight and you think you may have tried every diet that was ever invented, and you are thinking of giving up, well, be heartened.

I just read an ad for a "diet plan that BURNS fat away." It doesn't give details. One cannot be sure if a blow-torch is used, or acid. If you've tried everything else, perhaps...

An article in a current sensationalist paper says "You can live up your dreary dieting routine by occasionally switching to an exciting 'five-day melt-away wine diet' that allows you champagne, flaming shrimp, poached salmon and other delicacies."

The idea of this diet is to keep the food in your mouth a long time. That is supposed to fool your brain in to thinking you have eaten an enormous gourmet meal.

The originator of this diet suggests you find foods with extra texture in time to keep your mouth's nerve endings busy. In the meantime, you drink a large glass of wine with your three meals, and a cocktail before bedtime. This is a diet to cure your boredom with reducing diets. But he warns you not to stay on the diet more than five days. La Dolce Vita may result.

The Olympic Women's Ski Team Diet is composed of lots of boiled eggs and grapefruit and raw spinach. I tried it, but I never learned to ski.

The Royal Canadian Air Force Diet and Exercise Plan is very sensible. It involves lots of exercise, scientifically proven effective for getting into condition and for losing weight. When you are through with the diet and exercises, you are a perfect specimen of glowing health, and are immediately inducted into the Canadian Airforce. That is part of the agreement.

Another recent article read "How to Lose Weight by Not Worrying About It." Unfortunately, lots of us have been doing that for years. The doctor who thought up this diet says to find another pleasure besides food. He says to be happy with yourself as a fatie. "Spend a few minutes each day thinking about your potential for being admired, influential and physically irresistible."

He advocates enjoying life. He says not to equate being fat with being unhappy. Thin people are often miserable. But he says that if you fill your mind with valid reasons for happiness, you will be happy, and you will lose weight.

If these methods do not work, there are the advertisements which always guarantee results. One such ad reads: "Now! Lifetime freedom from fat with doctor's amazing 'coffee-off' program. Turns a cupful of coffee or tea into hours of 'liquid willpower.' Like turning up an inner furnace that shrinks your body's fat cells, starting the very first day... without a moment of brutal, punishing exercise."

It goes on to enthuse: "Shuts off even a runaway appetite, on command!"

However, you may have your doubts about such claims, and may wish to go on the "Last Chance Diet." This consists of spoonfuls of a liquid protein substance, pre-digested, in place of meals. A friend tried this diet for four days, losing weight. Unfortunately, she gained it all back in the next four days. She has stopped dieting. She says that was her last chance.

Marriage Encounter: putting new pep into the relationship

"To love someone is to bid him to live and to invite him to grow" is the introductory remark of literature for Marriage Encounter. Marriage Encounter originated in Spain, was imported in 1957 by Catholics on the East Coast.

It has grown to include Episcopal, Jewish, Methodist, Presbyterian and Lutheran expressions of the program, although no religious affiliation at all is required to participate.

Marriage Encounter is a weekend away from home, family and responsibilities where couples can examine their lives together and learn techniques for communicating honest feelings about one another and their family. It is not an encounter group as people have come to understand the term. It is an encounter between the couple themselves.

Two local couples who are participants in Marriage Encounter through the Lutheran expression of the program, are Doug and Judy Wyatt, and Ada and Dave Dorn of Livermore.

The Wyatts are the informational source for the program in this area, zone coordinators for the Lutheran expression of Marriage Encounter, which includes the Pleasanton, Livermore and Dublin areas, as well as Tracy. They give monthly introductory talks to inform couples with "good" marriages of the program which may possibly make their marriages even better.

During the Marriage Encounter weekend, three lay couples and a clergy couple give a presentation and explain the program. The second step comes when the couple returns to its hotel room alone to put communication techniques into practice. What comes of this encounter? Many couples say they find an immediate change in their relationship.

Judy Wyatt speaks her feelings: "It's like opening up a gift. I think from a wife's point of view, after 12 years of marriage, sometimes things get a little dull. Is there anything left to say besides discussing the children and his work?"

"I think you often fantasize 'If I'd been a career woman, with many other relationships, things might have been different.' I think from Marriage Encounter, we've found there is a lot more to learn about each other. It has put back the excitement in our relationship."

"It's been helpful to me, because a man has been taught from early childhood that he's the strong person, that he is not to share his personal thoughts and feelings," Doug says. "But now I have new insight," says Doug. "To share openly what you feel, that adds a total new viewpoint towards marriage as well as to myself."

Judy explains that previously she would notice Doug was in a bad mood. "I'd ask him what was wrong. He'd answer 'Nothing'. End of communication."

But since their Marriage Encounter experience, which took place a year ago, the enthusiastic couple finds both of them are more open with one another. They notice a renewed awareness and love toward one another. "It's like we're back in our engagement period, a renewal, a new love" both enthuse.

Doug admits "We still have our fights and ups and downs, like any other couple. It's not really a cure-all."

Since experiencing Marriage Encounter they both find "More sharing, more honest sharing, less televi-

'Now we hold hands... it's really inspiring'

Ada and Dave Dorn say they find that Marriage Encounter has meant a new freshness in their marriage.

"Right now, our children are grown... the last one graduating from high school," says Ada. "Instead of an empty nest syndrome, it is a new focus... to Dave, and to us as a couple. There's a new freshness in our love like when we were first married. I find that very refreshing," she says.

"We first encountered in September, and again in April. It was just beautiful," Ada says.

"You find that as you grow, there are more possibilities for growth and closeness," explained Dave.

Dave admits that after 23 years of marriage, you fall into bad habits at times. He used to withhold things, feelings, from Ada to keep peace. Now he's more open with his wife.

"I've grown," says Dave. "The big difference is that we are confident enough in each others' love to be able to be open. It's not absolute. We're still trying. But Marriage Encounter opens possibilities."

Ada explains, "I thought we had a really good marriage before Marriage Encounter, but this has given me a whole new way of looking at things, open and honest. And I find it more enriching."

Dave Dorn has found the program to bring them closer to their church. "I guess the big thrust on that is that God has a plan for marriage laid out pretty clearly... and the Marriage Encounter weekend shows what some of the depth can be. You become closer and closer... to work with each other. It has made marriage above and beyond what we had imagined."

"Everyone has ups and downs," adds Ada, "but since Marriage Encounter, we find ourselves listening more, accepting more of other people."

"You are able not only to accept, but to love people the way they are," adds her husband.

Ada goes on to explain. "We do more things together now. My husband came with me to a nurse's convention in Vancouver. Having him along made it more special. My peers were surprised also. They could see it was special."

Dave says that things have changed for him too. "I feel closer to Ada now, even when I'm travelling. I write cards and letters to her even on short trips."

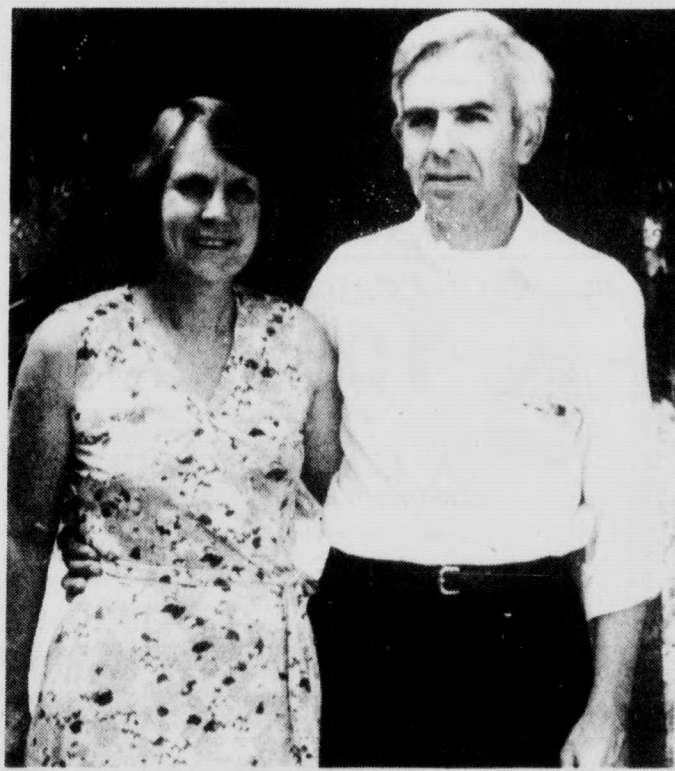

The whole family seems to benefit. The Dorns say that of their four children, communications have improved with the son who is still at home.

School budgeting in the face of student crunch

(This is the second of two articles on the $25.9 million budget recently adopted by the San Ramon Valley Unified School District.)

The final budget for fiscal year 1978 rivals the area phone directory in size.

For complexity, the San Ramon document has few rivals.

The district has been cast in the unenviable position of trying to accommodate a continuing torrent of students in the face of limited facilities and an uncertain amount of new revenues.

The uncertainty was heightened in March when district voters resoundingly turned down a lease-purchase bond issue that would have given the district $17.7 million to finance new schools, additions and site acquisition.

As a result, the district must make do with two schools under construction (Pine Valley and Montevideo), the new Greenbrook School, rebuilt Neil Armstrong, an expanded California High School and additions and improvements at other district schools.

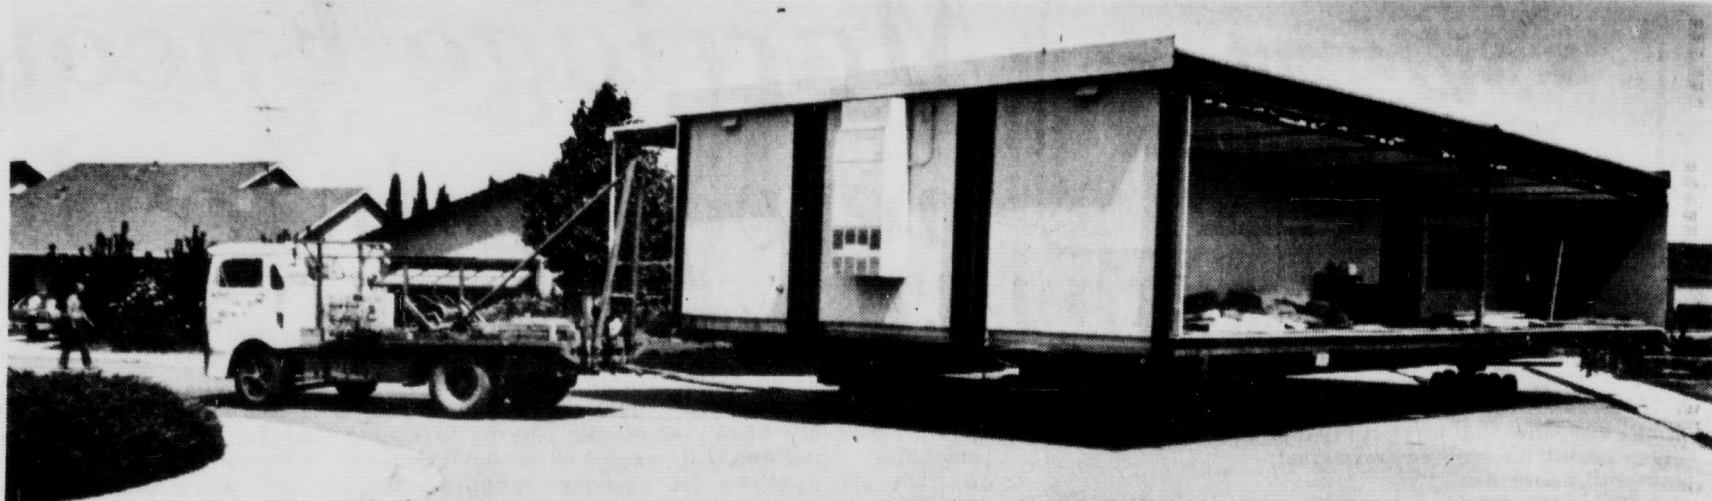

While this should adequately take care of the estimated 14,300 students expected barely a month from now, it won't satisfy the projected student population of 1980.

Superintendent Allan Petersdorf and other district leaders have contended that double sessions at some schools are a distinct possibility the year after next.

In January of this year, business manager Orrin Bachelor issued a financial forecast covering the period 1978 to 1980. Bachelor anticipated a growth in assessed valuation (for fiscal '78) of 10 per cent. The AV in the final budget approved last Monday is $342,500,579, up from $292.4 million, or higher than Bachelor's 10 per cent forecast.

Bachelor's projection of average daily attendance (ADA) back in January was 13,600 for fiscal year '78. The final budget places

Rancho portables

it at 14,351.

His forecast budget totaled $21.5 million, some $4.4 million blow the adopted amount.

It must be noted here that any forecasts or projections done so far in advance of the actual adoption budget are necessarily conservative, based on the information on hand at the time.

As part of his final budget supplement, Bachelor included projections for the following two years.

If all the construction activity holds, district trustees will be looking at budgets approaching the $30 million mark within three years.

There is no indication at this point that any construction "in progress" will be curtailed or ended after one phase or that all the prospective housing developments will be wiped off the preliminary drawing maps.

San Ramon, in appearance, is the "Santa Clara of the 70s" ... and as district administrators might interject "hopefully not the overbuilt district of the 80s."

There seems little chance of the latter, though. Particularly in light of the community's "mood" on bond issues.

Copies of the 1977-78 ledger detailing what monies will be spent for are available at district offices on Old Orchard Road in Danville and at the library.

United front to put public strike ban on ballot in June

Two citizens groups Monday announced they have joined in efforts to place on next June's ballot an initiative banning strikes by public employees.

The groups are the Committee for Individual Rights, headed by two Southern California women, and the Committee for Citizens' Rights, headed by Dan L. McGurk, and co-chaired by Betty Cordoba and Dolly Swift, leaders of the former group.

To operate as "The Committee for Citizens' Rights," the organization has launched a campaign to gather 750,000 signatures to qualify for the ballot a constitutional amendment entitled "Prohibition of Strikes by Public Employees."

This is the second effort by Mrs. Cordoba and Mrs. Swift to place such an initiative on the ballot.

"We are a broad-based, non-partisan coalition of organizations and individuals committed to preserving essential government services and the rights and privileges of public employees," Mrs. Swift said. "There is no right to strike against the public safety. All public employees are involved, directly or indirectly, with the public safety."

The initiative, which relates only to public employees, would:

— Make strikes by public employees unlawful.

— Provide for mandatory dismissal, loss of tenure and seniority for violators.

— Prohibit forced unionism in public employment.

— Make use of dues or fees for political purposes unlawful.

— Require final decisions be made by the governing body of each governmental entity.

— Establish ground rules for public officials and prevent circumvention of the prohibitions.

Mrs. Cordoba emphasized that "it is essential that California taxpayers, not union bosses, determine the future cost of running our state and local governments. All those who wish to join the committee's efforts can contact the committee by writing to Committee for Citizens' Rights, P.O. Box 5346, Sherman Oaks, Calif. 91413, or by phoning (213) 345-2712."

"Our polls show this is an idea whose time has come," Mrs. Cordoba said. "We are confident that Californians, armed with the facts, will place this initiative on the ballot and will support it overwhelmingly."

Getting poetry in the mainstream

DUBLIN — If Sharon Lee gets her way, the words "National Poetry Day" will be on everyone's lips each Oct. 15.

And lots of poems will be on people's lips, too, because Lee, who used to be a public relations person, has thought up some imaginative proposals to put poetry into everyone's daily life.

Lee, who publishes "Women Talking, Women Listening," an annual anthology of women's poetry, thinks it's shocking that poetry is thought of as something that only effeminate men and old housewives coo about.

Poetry is real, it's everyday life, it sweats in the marketplace, and Lee wants everyone to know it.

So to publicize National Poetry Day, she has the following suggestions for community leaders, media people, and fellow poets.

— Poets could arrange with restaurants, bookstores and libraries to read poems on a regular basis throughout the day. (Presumably, only on National Poetry Day, though with her enthusiasm, she might mean every day.)

— Chairpersons of church groups, service clubs and women's organizations should build programs around their favorite poetry. — Ministers, priests and rabbis ought to include poetry in their services.

— Large organizations could have readings at noon in the company cafeteria.

— Put poetry in company newsletters.

— Radio stations could intersperse their program ming with brief poems.

And along more general lines, school teachers ought to plan lessons around poetry; film strips, records, books and poetry workshops are available for the schools.

"How about a poem a day for a week in an elementary school," said Lee. "Libraries and bookstores could put up special displays and a poetry wall for local poets to hang their poems."

"Families could dig out their favorite poems and share them at the dinner table, the way Amy Carter reads at the dinner table," she said.

"Jimmy Carter should commission his poet, James Dickey of Georgia, to write a special poem for poetry day. There is a renaissance of poetry in this country and we should leave a record of it."

The third edition of Lee's anthology will be out later this year. The second volume is still on sale at Sage Books and Pleasanton Books in Pleasanton and Book Haven in Livermore.

There is a free program of putting small press books into donated display racks for libraries and that's a great way to get new poets out to the people, said Lee. Librarians or book stores operators who want to know more about that, can call her at 828-6620.

Hope for city-owned tennis in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON — With last year's $7,000 deficit backhanded into oblivion, the city's Tennis Faire vaulted into forecourt last week with spin and flourish.

This year "We feel confident we'll break even," department of recreation director Bob Caporusso says in rallying to the program's defense.

He's not unstrung by the deficit. The disastrous December in which the city lost more than $2,000 has been sliced from the calendar, rates have been raised a shade, and the court's crew is faulting patrons with love. Indoor courts at the Alameda County Fairgrounds were resurfaced last week.

Game players may match wits between 8:15 a.m. and 11 p.m. daily.

Tennis Faire, as opposed to private racquet clubs, works on the "pay when you play" principle.

Always out to court returning patrons and net new ones, singles' games are available at $5 per hour and a quarter, and doubles at $6. City sponsored group lessons may offer an advantage for some.

Children pay $12 for eight one-hour sets, and adults $18.

Private and semi-private instruction are also served.

Recreation officials have matched city council and park and recreation commission mandates to break even this coming year by lobbying December, June and July from the schedule.

Christmas competed with tennis and won in straight sets.

And the annual Alameda County Fair courts enough patrons to bounce tennis from the Young California Building.

But all the city's tennis is not confined to Tennis Faire.

Two courts at Pleasanton Elementary School on First Street have reopened after a $3,150 resurfacing and repainting. Lights are metered at 15 minutes for 25-cents.

All in all, the city offers quite a game. Never a racket.

Named to VFW committee

PLEASANTON — Lloyd L. Lindquist of 4034 Suffolk Way, has been appointed to the convention committee on Americanism and Community Activities by V.F.W. commander-in-chief R.D. "Bulldog" Smith.

The committee will meet during the 78th National Convention of Veterans of Foreign Wars, August 19-26 in Minneapolis, Minn.

"Mr. Lindquist is an active member of the V.F.W. and is familiar with the goals of the organization," Smith said. "He understands that we have been a part of America's history for 78 of 201 years, and he will be an asset in formulating policies."

The committee will consider all resolutions concerning Americanism, community activities, loyalty, safety and youth activities which correlate with the V.F.W.'s programs and make recommendations to the delegates at the convention for approval or disapproval.

In addition to setting goals for the V.F.W. for the coming year, delegates and committee members will hear many national leaders speak on topics of national security, veterans legislation and other items of national interest.

Request to build on small lot

James Baker and Arvil Houts will ask Alameda County Zoning Administrator Richard Flynn to approve a 25,000 square foot lot as a building site in an area where five acres is the minimum building site Wednesday.

The site is located at the rear of 277 Kilcare Road, Sunol.

Flynn also will be asked to allow continuation of a kennel for 20 dogs at 17017 Midway Road on an agriculturally zoned lot.

The Photo Place, which hopes to lease from Dr. Howard Zlot, will ask for a conditional use permit to allow a photo kiosk in a commercial zone 100 feet west of the Amador Valley Boulevard intersection with Village Parkway.

Homeowners accept a change in plans

The San Ramon Homeowners Association is going along with a development company's plans to convert a proposed restaurant complex into shops.

SRHA directors and members gave Rinker Company the nod Thursday night to go ahead with plans to provide a 75-foot setback instead of the originally planned 10 feet in front of a proposed building.

The variance is to allow ample space for parking and landscaping, according to Phil Smith. He is Executive Vice President of the Rinker Company Walnut Creek office and Manager of their Northern California branch.

The proposed building is to be erected on a .58 acre parcel on the northeast corner of San Ramon Valley Boulevard and Alameda Boulevard in San Ramon. It will lie between a gasoline service station and a real estate office.

The Rinker Company has received permission from the Contra Costa County Planning Commission, according to a commission spokesman.

Originally, the proposed building was to house a restaurant complex. Smith said the 6900 square foot building will be used to house retail shops.

"There will be space for five to seven shops," he added.

Insurance and real estate offices were in the realm of possible choices as occupants, he said.

The SRHA board requested one amendment to the Rinker plan. They asked to have delivery and garbage disposal facilities located on the north side of the complex in case a restaurant should ever be included in the building.

SRHA's approval was also given on the basis Rinker Company not ask for any more variances.

County's interest windfall

OAKLAND — It's been an interesting year for Alameda County government.

Treasurer-Tax Collector Frank Krause reported to the board of supervisors last week that the county earned $43,000 more in bank interest than originally expected.

The total on the treasurer's pooled money was $11,720,331 and 52 per cent, or $6,163,253 of that was retained in the general fund. It's $43,000 more than the estimated budget earnings of $6,120,000 originally indicated.

Open champ to play in Coventry

ALAMO — Hollis Stacy, winner of the United States Women's Open just two weeks ago, has committed herself to play in the Sarah Coventry, a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament to be played at Round Hill Country Club Sept. 21-25.

Until her win at the Hazeltine National Golf Club, scene of the 1970 men's U.S. Open, the irascible Stacy had yet to score her first tour victory.

However, while most newcomers to the tour have trouble meeting expenses, Stacy did relatively well, finishing last year with three ties for second place and more than $30,000 in prize money.

"When I first joined the tour three years ago, I had a difficult time coping with the inconsistencies in my game," Stacy said. "But, slowly, you realize that you're going to miss a few shots and, when you do, it's not the end of the world."

Stacy went on to say that playing on the LPGA tour has been a real maturing process: "You learn slowly, but surely, to separate yourself from your game. If you can't make the transition, the game can almost become a neurosis and, eventually, you'll lose your ability to concentrate."

With a smirk on her face, Stacy says that golf isn't too mental — only about 99 per cent. She contends that while most of the players on the tour are physically capable of winning, it is the mental aspect of the game which is their nemesis.

"I used to play my practice round in the morning and spend the afternoon watching Kathy Whitworth or Judy Rankin play. I was not so much interested in watching their swing, although that can be instructive," Stacy said.

"I was interested in watching their mental approach to a shot. I believe you can see it in the face and stature of each player. Now that her first win is behind her, Stacy feels she has passed a definite psychological milestone. According to the 23-year old pro, "Winning the first tournament is a liberating experience. It is the fruition of many years of hard work."

Hollis Stacy, U.S. Women's Open champ, is the latest entrant in Coventry.

Now that she has accomplished it, she plans to relax and concentrate on her game.

Stacy will be one of over 100 pros competing at the Sarah Coventry. LPGA commissioner Ray Volpe calls the tournament, the "premiere year-end event" on the tour. Due to its sizable purse and timing, the tourney will likely determine the richest player of 1977.

Alameda, CC change rosters

Dave Armstrong, formerly of San Leandro High School, has been named to the Alameda County football all-star team as a replacement for Clarence Jackson of Berkeley.

Jackson cited employment commitments as the reason he'll miss the Aug. 20 clash with Contra Costa County at Eells Stadium in Antioch.

Armstrong, who'll don uniform number 24 in the game, is a 6-2, 180 pound flanker who was all-ACAL, all-South County and San Leandro's most valuable player.

He'll join his Alameda team mates for their first practice session Thursday at California State University in Hayward. Contra Costa will practice at Diablo Valley College in Pleasant Hill.

The Contra Costa team also announced a roster change over the weekend.

Rick Norwood of Clayton Valley High School stretched a ligament and will miss the pre-college classic.

His spot on the roster will be taken by Ron Dygert, a 5-10, 185-pound linebacker from Acalanes.

Dygert was all-FAL, the Dons' MVP and defensive player of the year. Experienced on special teams as well as defense, Dygert will wear uniform number 54.

Expos rattle Cubs, 2-1

Vic Vigeal scattered four hits and picked up the win as the Oakland Expos bounced the Tri-Valley Cubs 6-1 in a Northern California Baseball Association contest Sunday at the Dublin Sports Grounds.

The Cubs, who picked up two CBA wins by forfeit earlier in the week when the El Cerrito Hatzell's dropped out of the league, saw their league slate fall to 4-9 and overall record even up at 18-18.

Bob Stoddard singled and doubled for the Cubs, while Jim Florence and manager Brian Billy also singled. However, the Cubs' lone run was scored without a hit.

Kirk Petersen reached on an error by the shortstop, while Billy walked and Clint Martin followed with a shot to the right side that the second baseman booted, allowing Petersen to score.

The Ravens, who sit in first place in the CBA, scored two runs in the third and eighth inning while tallying single runs in the first and seventh.

Bob Chapman started on the mound for the Cubs, while Stoddard finished up in relief. Each pitcher gave up three runs, with Chapman taking the defeat.

The locals committed six errors to hurt their own cause.

The Cubs will not play their final CBA game until August 21, when they entertain the I.O.F. in a doubleheader at the Dublin Grounds. The first game will count as league and the second will be exhibition.

Thursday the Cubs play the Hatzells at the Dublin Grounds at 6:00 in a practice game. Then on Sunday Tri-Valley will travel to El Cerrito Rec Park to play an exhibition doubleheader with the Hatzells, still active despite dropping out.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: In my family our father was the law and neither my mother nor we children had a chance to make decisions on our own. I believe this is why I feel so insecure today. I go into a panic whenever I have to make a choice. This is a big problem now that I'm planning my wedding. It's driving me crazy, not just the big decision of marriage itself, but all the other things, such as where to have the reception, whom to invite, what to serve, and so on. J.B.

DEAR J.B.: One of the great dangers of the authoritarian family is exactly the one you point out. Within a family decisions should be made jointly so that the children have an opportunity to experience how they are reached and what factors should be considered and weighed. They should also learn through sharing decision-making that errors aren't always fatal.

Princeton philosopher Walter Kaufmann says that the fear of making fateful decisions is nearly universal. He calls it "decidophobia." The decidophobe restricts himself by making one of 10 major choices which automatically eliminates the need for making future decisions.

The most common choice is marriage. Many women marry primarily to avoid fateful decisions in the future. They decide they'll leave all that up to their husbands. Men, too, may marry so they can avoid the lone decision. If something goes wrong, they'll have someone to share the blame with.

Before you walk down the aisle, make sure you're not getting married just as an escape. The only way to overcome your phobia is to practice making decisions and to realize, before you do, that you don't have to be perfect. It might be a good idea to deliberately make some wrong choices, so that you'll see they're not necessarily disastrous. DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I hate going to parties because whenever I get in a group, I have a terrible time talking. I just get tense and clam up. I often have to go to parties with another secretary from my office and my boss always gets chummy and touches me more than I like. This makes me even more tense and I practically stutter. Any suggestions? — R.A.

DEAR R.A.: Practice helps. Find someone else who is just as shy as you are, set goals for what you want to accomplish in a specific social situation and then do a test-run with each other.

When you go to a party, don't go empty headed, as it were, but prepare by thinking of some topics of conversation that might be of interest. Once you launch in, listen carefully to the response. This seems obvious, but studies have shown that many reticent people have trouble listening as well as communicating. Most of this is a result of a bad case of nerves that blocks concentration.

Try to remember when you're in any social situation that others are just about as shy as you are and if they're talking, they're making an effort to leap over their fears and timidity.

Gerald Phillips and Nancy Metzger of Pennsylvania State University observed people who became tongue-tied in social situations and discovered they often tended to overestimate their own importance and to think others should be the ones to make the first move. They rarely beamed cues that might let others know what they'd like to talk about.

As for your fondling, touching boss. Touch can mean a lot of different things and it's impossible to guess just what he means without knowing more about him. He may be trying to show that he likes you, he may be making a pass, he may be reassuring himself that he has more power than you, or he may just be a warm, open, friendly type who touches both men and women. Ask him or touch him back — this may give you the answer.

Q. "HOW DOES YEAST MAKE BREAD RISE?"

A. YEASTS ARE TINY PLANTS THAT, WHEN MIXED IN BREAD DOUGH, RELEASE A GAS THAT PUFFS UP THE DOUGH AND MAKES THE BREAD SOFT AND LIGHT.

The earliest bread was not like the bread we are used to eating. It was hard, flat, and dry.

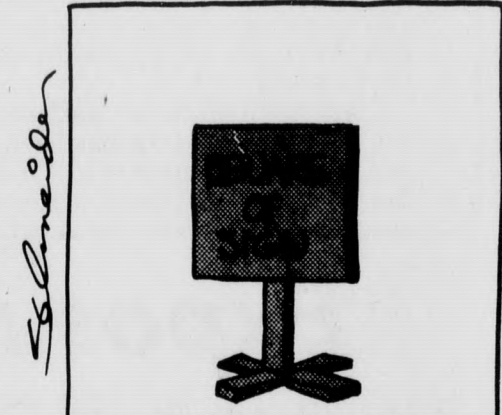

The bread we eat most often today is leavened, or raised, with yeast to make it soft and light and tasty.

A yeast is a plant. Each yeast plant is made up of one cell which is so tiny it can be seen only with a microscope.

Great numbers of yeast plants, in the form of a yeast paste, are mixed into the bread dough.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do small to moderate levels of ketones in urine from time to time signify anything of importance? No sugar has ever been found to be present. These levels seem to be connected to prior lethargy and disorientation, but not always.

I understand this may have something to do with carbohydrate metabolism. What role might diet, stress or genetics play?

I have been aware of these episodes since adolescence — over 20 years. Obviously they are not a life threatening condition.

Before I tested my urine I talked to a physician about these episodes of lethargy followed by an unusual smell of my urine but was laughed at and left feeling like a fool. I'm still curious. Can you shed some light on this puzzle?

DEAR READER — Ketones are the incompletely metabolized products of fat metabolism. They include acetone and do have a fruity odor. If you severely restricted your carbohydrates forcing your body to use fats, the excess fat breakdown would produce excess amounts of ketones. This will also make your breath smell like you had been drinking alcohol.

This result occurred when Dr. Atkins' diet fad was sweeping the country. You could smell the dieters even if they were not losing weight.

The same thing happens to advanced diabetics who are not adequately controlled with insulin. Because the severe diabetic cannot use carbohydrates efficiently he may be using excess amounts of fat causing ketosis. In advanced stages this leads to diabetic acidosis.

Several other conditions wherein the body does not utilize carbohydrates properly can lead to this problem. This includes alcohol consumption. The alcoholic may have low blood sugar because the alcohol interferes with the liver's normal mechanisms to maintain blood sugar levels. The body uses fat and hence produces ketones in the urine.

I think you should have a careful metabolic study.

win at bridge

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Bidding methods have no defense against the so-called mirror distribution. This occurs when each partner has the same length in each of the four suits. It is particularly damaging when the mirror distribution is 4-3-3-3.

There is just no play at all for six notrump in spite of the 34 high-card points held by North and South.

It is also worthy of note that players of the never-slip system might find their way to six hearts. There is a 4-4 heart fit.

In case you wonder what the never-slip system is it was described years ago by Ely Culbertson who said: "Show me all 52 cards and my system will get to the right contract every time."

Somewhere someone might try a Stayman response to the two-notrump opening to check for a 4-4 heart fit and then bid six hearts.

Playing at six hearts, South wins the club, cashes the ace and king of hearts and all the diamonds and spades. Then he cashes the second high club and throws East in with his queen of trumps.

East has to lead a diamond or a spade. South gets a ruff and discard and has avoided the loss of a club trick.

Merit Challenges Entire Low Tar Field To Match Taste.

'Enriched Flavor'<sup>TM</sup> tobacco makes MERIT unique among low tar cigarettes.

For years, smokers have been promised good taste at low tar.

Yet despite the promises, the products just didn't measure up. Regardless of special filters and baffles, low tar cigarettes just couldn't deliver.

Until MERIT. Until work began on the tobacco end of smoking.

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain flavor-rich ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

The result was 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco that delivers the kind of taste smokers can switch to. And stick with.

Kings: 8 mg. "tar," 0.5 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Dec. '76 100's: 12 mg. "tar," 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Tests Prove Taste

MERIT and MERIT 100's were both tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes. The results proved conclusively that 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco does boost taste without the usual increase in tar.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And you can taste it.
